June 23 is National Typewriter Day!

Just thought you should know that, for without our typewriters (aka computers) there would be no new books to read.

And speaking of new books, book three of the Trilogy, The Starlet in Cabin Number Seven, is off to the publisher, and should be ready in a couple of months. (Book Publisher's Day is January 16. We missed it!)

And since we're on dates, September 6 is National Read a Book Day.

What else is new?

I've been working on a prequel to the trilogy, which started out as a Novella; it's called The Maidservant in Cabin Number One, and it's now a little over 300 pages! It's about the woman who marries the man who built the cabins Annie has restored, and she eventually sells them to Sam, who sells them to Annie when she comes up to the mountains to start a new life!

And what comes next? The Sequel, Dear Noah, which is also a Novella, and takes us from Annie in her thirties to when she's in her eighties and decides to write about her life.

I'm killing it with my Amazon rankings so your reviews are super important.

Ha ha!

Book 1, The Man in Cabin Number Five is now at 175,839 up 457,575
 Book 2, The Girls in Cabin Number Three is now 186,602 up 869,319
 It looks like all I need are a few more sales to get to number one!

What I'm Reading

Both of these books were great reads!

The Bookwoman of Troublesome Creek and The Bookwoman's Daughter are about the women who delivered books to the rural mountains of Kentucky.

I'm hooked on Donna Everhart's books, and so far have read two:

The Moonshiner's Daughter and The Road to Bittersweet.

If you know someone who loves to read, please forward this!
